DAYS 8-14: Strategy Architecture

One-Sentence Strategy: "We own the space between rock bottom and resurrection for men in crisis"

Strategic Narrative (The Kitchen Floor Manifesto):

"On November 12, 2023, I was on my kitchen floor, sobbing, begging God for help. My relationship ended. My identity shattered. I wanted to die.

The gym felt pointless. Therapy felt weak. Nothing addressed the whole collapse.

So I created what I needed: Crisis recovery through physical resurrection.

This isn't fitness. It's emergency intervention for men whose lives are falling apart.

While Tony Robbins motivates the motivated and therapists talk to the willing, I resurrect the dead.

I only work with men in active crisis. If you're not desperate, I'm not for you. If you are, I'm your only option.

The fitness industry sells hope. I sell resurrection.

$5,000 for 6 weeks because crisis can't wait for payment plans. You'll spend that on numbness or invest it in rising.

I take 4 men at a time because resurrection requires presence.

The Brotherhood exists because no man rises alone.

If you're on your kitchen floor right now, you're exactly where you need to be. Rock bottom is where resurrection begins."
